EVERYDAY co-workers sit together in an office discussing the projects they have in front of them on a PC. This usually results in a lot of pointing at the screen and notes being hastily jotted down on paper. Now, with the introduction of the CR-5, people can communicate more effectively. By using this compact, full-featured copyboard, co-workers can better interact and share ideas through drawings and notes added to its dry-erase surface. Best of all, when the discussion is finished the notes and drawings written on the board can be easily saved as an electronic file to be emailed or printed in color.
